

7 Indictments, 16 Dismissals By Grand Jury

Four indictments are open, remainder being sealed—Negro indicted for stealing $400 from prisoner in jail pleads not guilty.

Four open indictments, thirteen sealed and sixteen dismissals were returned by the grand jury which met in attendance at the May 21 session of the Supreme court. The return was handed up at the opening of court Monday afternoon and after the court adjourned the members of the grand jury were excused from further service with the court.

Charles Connolly, charged with attempted grand larceny, second degree, alleged to have been committed on May 11 at the city of Kingston, was first entered a plea of guilty but later this plea was reconsidered and a plea of not guilty was entered and granted by the court. Connolly came to Kingston with a car and in company with another man attempted to steal a Ford car owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. He was caught and the youth who was with Connolly convinced the authorities that he had believed Connolly had a right to take the car. When arrested Monday Connolly said he had a lawyer in Newark but had not advised him to be in court and he asked the court to assign a lawyer since he had no funds to employ local counsel. Bernard A. Culliton was assigned.

Pleas Guilty Again.

Ernest Kelly, a colored lad, was indicted for assault, first degree, alleged to have been committed June 24, 1923, when he carved up Mattie Kelly with a razor. Kelly at that time entered a plea of guilty under information filed with the court in June that time the law which permitted a defendant to plead guilty without the formality of grand jury action has been declared unconstitutional and Kelly, who was serving a two to four year term at Dannemora, was brought back for grand jury action. The grand jury at this term returned a formal indictment against Kelly but the time he has served will be credited to any future sentence he receives. He pleaded guilty when arraigned Monday afternoon and will be brought into court Wednesday for sentence.

Ronald Butler, charged with rape, second degree, alleged to have been committed at Saugerties on April 26, was represented by Frank W. Brooks who entered a plea of not guilty and asked for 20 days to make motions to take any action deemed advisable. He asked that bail be fixed.

Charged With Robbing Prisoner

Herbert Butts, charged with grand larceny, second degree, alleged to have been committed on March 15 at Kingston when it is alleged he stole a roll of $400 from Benjamin Gerlach in the Ulster county jail, entered a plea of not guilty. Butts asked that counsel be assigned and William Kaercher was assigned by the court. On the night in question Gerlach was arrested by the police for driving a car while intoxicated and was brought to the county jail where he was locked in the cage. Next morning in city court he complained that while in jail he had been robbed of $400.

A search was made for the money but it was not found and for a time it was thought that Gerlach might be a rascal, but a watch was kept on the prisoner who might have had access to Gerlach and later on being discharged from jail William Pearlsall, a negro, was found to be spending big money at East Kingston. He had been just discharged from jail and without any means of securing such money, it appeared suspicious and he was arrested and charged with having seen the man who got Gerlach's money.

Pearlsall then told his story. He said Butts, who was serving a term in jail and was acting as a trustee, had stolen the money through the bars when he found Gerlach sleeping. He hid the money in the cellar of the jail. When Butts was locked up after the reported theft of the money he had told Pearlsall and Euma Fisher, another prisoner, about the money and Pearlsall finally found the money where it had been hidden. Pearlsall and Fisher split the money and Butts, who is claimed to have stolen it, did not share in the funds. After Pearlsall was arrested most of the money was recovered.

The sealed indictments were transferred by order to the county court for arraignment.

Cases Dismissed

In the following 16 cases where no bill of indictment was found, the defendants, who were in jail, were discharged and the cases where there were bail bonds in force, the bail bonds were cancelled.

Ronald H. Butler, charged with grand larceny, first degree, town of Saugerties.

Edward Pollard, attempted grand larceny, second degree, Kingston.

Edna Fisher, grand larceny, second degree, Kingston.

William Pearlsall, grand larceny, second degree, Kingston.

Harrison Barnes, failing to care for minor children, town of Esopus.

Joseph Levine, Benjamin Levine, violation of section 500, Workmen's Compensation Law, town of Wawarsing.

2d Anniversary of Lindbergh Flight

"Lone Eagle" in Company of Pioneer and Her Family in Maine—Belief That Pioneer is Taking Lessons in Flying.

North Haven, Me., May 21 (AP).—The second anniversary today of Charles A. Lindbergh's epochal New York-Paris non-stop flight found the "Lone Eagle" apparently intent on teaching air-mindedness to his fiancée, Miss Anne Morrow.

Possibility that the flying colonel would celebrate such an event anywhere but aloft appeared remote to residents of this little island, which has sheltered Lindbergh and members of the family of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow since their arrival by plane last Saturday.

It was not until yesterday, however, that the colonel ventured into the air from the seclusion of the Morrow estate. With Miss Morrow beside him in the big six-passenger amphibian, he took off from the recently cleared runway near the house and cruised over Camden and along the Maine coast for nearly a half hour.

But it was the unusual action of the plane, as it taxied down the runway before the colonel himself, was not at the controls. The craft taxied along the field several times before it finally shot sure and straight for the hop-off. The opinion was expressed that Miss Morrow had just made her first take-off.

Extortion Plot Against Morrow

Demand Made on Ambassador For $50,000 Under Penalty of Torture and Death to His Youngest Daughter—Explains Why Lindbergh Took Family to Maine Summer Home.

Boston, May 21 (AP).—The Boston Post in a copyrighted story says Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico and father of Miss Anne Morrow, fiancée of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has been made subject of a $50,000 extortion plot. The money, the Post asserts, was demanded under penalty of torture and death to his youngest daughter, 15-year-old Constance Morrow, a student at Milton Academy.

The newspaper says it was learned the receipt by the girl of two threatening letters was directly responsible for last Saturday's secret flight by Lindbergh and members of the Morrow family from the Morrow home at Englewood, N. J., to their summer place at North Haven, Me.

It was also responsible for the detective guard which has since stood vigil over the island retreat of the Morrows in Maine and, as an added precaution to the impersonation of Miss Constance by another girl at the Milton Academy while the former was being spirited away to join the airplane flight.

Guarded After First Letter Came. The Post declares it has learned that when Miss Morrow received the first letter she showed it to school authorities. Her family was notified and a guard assigned to her. When the second demand was made it gave detailed instructions how and where the money was to be placed and named last Saturday afternoon as the time.

At this juncture Mr. Morrow's former partner in the House of Morgan were appealed to and the services of federal investigators were enlisted, but although Miss Morrow's impersonator adhered strictly to the instructions no one appeared to claim the package. In the meantime, the Post asserts, the quick trip to Maine was being planned and Miss Morrow's arrival in New York was timed for Col. Lindbergh's hop-off. The aviator did not use his regular field in a further attempt to throw the would-be kidnappers off the trail.

MONOPLANE FORT WORTH STILL ALOFT TODAY.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 21 (AP).—With its single motor "going good" the monoplane Fort Worth, attempting to break the refueling endurance record of 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds established by the army monoplane Question Mark, still was aloft today.

The craft, piloted by R. L. Robbins with James Kelley as co-pilot, had been in the air 48 hours at 5:22 o'clock this morning, more than one-fourth of the time it must stay up to better the record. The plane took off at 11:25 a. m. Sunday.

To break the record it must remain aloft an hour longer than the Question Mark, or until 7:13:15 p. m. Saturday.

Rivers Again on New Litigation For Railroads

New Legislation Also Expected to Follow Decision of United States Supreme Court Upsetting Commerce Commission's Valuation of Railroad Property.

Washington, May 21 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce Commission today was confronted with the huge task of revising and bringing down to date its valuation of billions of dollars' worth of railroad properties, with the prospect of further litigation and that new legislation would be sought.

That stood out clearly as members of congress and the commission and railroad experts pursued their study of the Supreme court decision yesterday upholding the St. Louis and O'Fallon railroad in its test attack on the methods used by the commission in valuing its property.

While the commission withheld a public statement on the decision, which declared that reproduction costs might be considered in fixing carrier valuations, members were inclined to discount predictions that it would lead to large increases in rail rates. The case, it was pointed out, had to do chiefly with the resistance of the railroads to the commission's efforts to recapture under the law one-half of their net earnings in excess of six per cent of their value for distribution among less prosperous carriers.

At Mounds Landing, Miss., where a break in 1927 sent the flood of that spring across some of the Delta's richest lands and towns, levee board and government engineers were supervising forces which grew hourly in numbers.

Want Hoover to Rescind Rule.

Sloughs in the Mississippi river levee there had been checked sufficiently to give engineers hope that a break would be averted. A request that President Hoover rescind the regulation forbidding state convicts to work on government projects—the levees are federal-built—had brought no reply save the information that the request must come to Washington through the district engineer, Major John C. H. Lee, of Vicksburg.

Near Natchez, Miss., a private levee showed signs of weakening. Three to four hundred persons had taken their possessions and live stock to higher ground.

Danger in Arkansas.

Arkansas danger centered along the banks of the Red and Arkansas rivers. Toxarkana reported a gradual reduction in the Red's rate of rise, and fair weather in Oklahoma and southeast Arkansas promised to lighten the river's burden.

The Arkansas was falling between Ft. Smith and Little Rock. The government meteorologist at Little Rock reported, however, that a new rise was on the way and that accurate forecasts would be impossible until it had appeared. Between 6,000 and 10,000 acres near Pine Bluff were threatened with overflow from the Farrelly Lake levee. A "boil"—caused by water bursting through ground near the levee's edge—was surrounded with sandbags by some 200 workmen.

Levees Withstand Buffeting.

Levees on the Mississippi river at Hickman, Ky., where much anxiety was manifested several days ago, apparently had withstood buffeting and today engineers were slowly filling a space between new and time-weakened levee lines with water, to further resist the force of the river.

At Memphis, Tenn., the gauge-baronometer, used to judge the whole middle river—stood at about six feet above the flood stage of 55 feet, but was expected to become stationary today or tomorrow.

A slight rise on the Ohio and upper Mississippi was in evidence.

Republican Party Diamond Jubilee

Rival Cities Claim Honor as Party's Birthplace, but Ripon, Wisconsin, Will Celebrate Birthday on June 8.

Ripon, Wis., May 21 (AP).—Up here, come June 8, the folks are going to celebrate the diamond jubilee of the Republican party, much to the disgust of Jackson, Mich.

Michigan histories say Jackson was without doubt the birthplace of Republicanism. Wisconsin histories say Ripon was without doubt the birthplace of Republicanism. To settle the argument, Ripon decided to hold a celebration.

None of which has anything to do with Herbert, the $25,000 elephant engaged to march in the parade. Here he will be the symbol of the party's might or of its thick-skinnedness, depending upon whether one is looking through Republican or Democratic glasses.

Herbert was named—at least chronologically—after the president of the United States. His regular boarding house is the Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago, but his managers consented to let him participate here with the understanding that he lead the parade. There also was the matter of posting $25,000 bond to insure Herbert's safe return.

The present arrangement is for the pachyderm to travel from Chicago to Ripon on the special train of James W. Good, secretary of war, to whom this may be news.

Supper at Comforter Church.

A Virginia baked ham supper will be served by Circle No. 2 of the Ladies' Aid of the Church of the Comforter on Wednesday from 5:30 p. m. until 8 o'clock in the church hall.

Pope Will Make First Exit From Vatican on May 30

Rome, May 21 (AP).—Pio XII today said Pope Pius would make his first official exit from the Vatican on May 30, the feast of Corpus Christi, to participate in a procession and Mass at St. Peter's. The paper said the decision was reached last night.

The Pope plans, according to the paper, to attend Mass at St. Peter's, probably to be celebrated by Cardinal Merry del Val, archbishop of the Basilica. His Holiness then himself will take the sacred Host in the Chapel of Sacraments and lead the eucharist procession from the "Pietà" chapel out through the left door of the Basilica to the square.

He will go about as far as the second line of steps at St. Peter's, and then, raising the golden ostensorium with the host over his head, will bless the throng assembled in the square. The pontiff desires this exit, the first any Pope has made from the Vatican since 1870, to be made out of pure religious motives. There is to be no pomp, such as accompanied the Papal exits heretofore.

Arrangements for the exit were perfected this morning. The Pope will walk under a rich baldachin held up by a number of prominent prelates. This imposing cortege will be composed of students of the Vatican Minor Seminary, of the College of Roman Parish Priests headed by the chamberlain, archbishops and bishops residing in Rome, chapters of the Major Basilicas and the College of Cardinals.

This imposing cortege will be composed of students of the Vatican Minor Seminary, of the College of Roman Parish Priests headed by the chamberlain, archbishops and bishops residing in Rome, chapters of the Major Basilicas and the College of Cardinals.

Valuations Help Determine Rates. The valuations on which the recapture efforts are based, it was conceded, do operate to some extent in the determination of rail rates, but the commissioners apparently were convinced that the present rate level would be recognized by the carriers as being at a practicable level in general and that no attempt to disturb it to any great extent would be made, except possibly to clarify legal questions involved.

In view of the court's indication that the commission's valuation of the O'Fallon property was improper because of failure to take the present cost of construction sufficiently into account and the existence of other differences in the general dispute over valuation, it was thought the next step might be the presentation of another test case to the court.

Must Develop New Principles.

As to the probable effects of the O'Fallon decision on the clerical and engineering work of the commission, it was pointed out that the data it has gathered was not in question and that the administrative problem now was to develop new principles of valuation. Work on valuation and the bringing of calculations up to date has been suspended pending the decision in the O'Fallon case, and that will now be pressed while revision of old decisions proceeds.

A number of members of congress interested in railroad legislation displayed keen interest in the decision. Many thought congressional action would be needed to clarify the situation, but the likelihood that the special session would be called upon to deal with the problem was considered remote.

THREE MEN FIGHT BATTLE WITH OCTOPUS

San Mateo, Cal., May 21 (AP).—How three men in a small boat fought a sea battle with a 12-foot octopus was told here last night by Earl Small, Charles Ross and Robert Holtz of this city. The octopus was placed on display in a sporting goods shop.

Small said he hooked the octopus while fishing 12 miles at sea yesterday. The combined strength of the three men was required to bring the monster to the surface. When it broke water, Small asserted, the air seemed filled with flying tentacles. One was cut off by Ross as it twined itself about Small's leg. Another was severed as it was caught by the propeller.

Knives, boat hooks and sails were used in the two-hour battle before the octopus was killed.

ANOTHER DOCTOR DIES FROM HOSPITAL POISON GAS

Cleveland, May 21 (AP).—Dr. George W. Belcher, staff physician of the Cleveland clinic, succumbed today to the effects of poisonous gas which filled the building after two explosions last Wednesday. He was the 125th victim of the disaster.

He was the seventh physician at the clinic to die of the fumes, generated by burning X-ray films in a basement storeroom. He was a specialist in diseases of the bladder and was a leader in research in his field.

Four others were in a critical condition today from the poisonous poison. Henry W. Lustig, a patient in the clinic at the time of the explosions, was not expected to live.

AIRPLANE CRASHES INTO TOP OF FIR TREE.

Marshfield, Ore., May 21 (AP).—An airplane was perched in a tree top near here today, one hundred feet above the ground.

The ship, piloted by Dr. Earl Law of Coquille, Ore., and carrying William Richardson, crashed into the top of the fir tree Saturday. Dr. Law said the controls stuck and the plane went into a dive. He was uninjured, and Richardson received only a minor cut.

Memorial Day Plans Completed

Parade to Start Fifteen Minutes Earlier So Exercises Will Be at End by Noon—Names Wanted of Organizations Intending to Parade.

Plans for the extensive celebration of Memorial Day in Kingston, as outlined by Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, were practically completed by the general committee at the meeting in the Legion Memorial Building, West O'Reilly street, Monday evening.

One of the main features at the meeting was changing the parade's starting time. Instead of marching from McIntee street and Broadway at 10 o'clock the big parade will leave the starting point at 9:45. The change was made so that the exercises at the high school, which are to start at 11 a. m., may be completed before the firing of the salute at 12 noon.

The exercises at the high school will open with a selection, "America", by the Junior Order of American Mechanics Band. The Rev. F. H. Neal will make the invocation, which is to be followed by the Gettysburg address by one of the high school pupils. The address of the day will be made by the Rev. O. E. Brandorff, pastor of the Redeemer Lutheran Church. Then all will join in singing "The Star Spangled Banner" and the Rev. F. H. Neal will pronounce the benediction, closing the program.

Fire Salute at Noon.

At 12 m. promptly the salute will be fired by members of the 155th Field Artillery. Last year the volley was sent off in the midst of the Hon. Charles H. Tuttle's address, but this occurrence will be avoided on Memorial Day by the prompt starting of the exercises at 11 o'clock.

Invitations are to be extended to all Grand Army of the Republic veterans, sergeants of the city, disabled soldiers and Gold Star mothers to sit upon the platform as guests of honor.

Parade Must Give Notice

Major O. R. Hiltbrandt of the 155th Field Artillery, marshal of the parade, is very anxious to hear from all organizations that contemplate taking part so that he may assign places. Many societies have failed to comply with the major's request and therefore are holding up his plans. He must know as soon as possible the approximate number of men that every organization will have in line and whether they will be headed by a musical unit. It is easily understood by men, familiar with planning parades, the difficult task of making up divisions so that there will be ample march music, when there are too few bands; so it is hoped all organizations will get in touch with Major Hiltbrandt, marshal, or General Chairman Major E. J. Dempsey as soon as possible.

Colored Organizations in Line

One of the largest divisions in the parade will be made up of the colored organizations of the city, who will be headed by the Colonial City Colored Band. Colored organizations in line will be as follows: Colonial City Lodge of Elks, Grand Union Order of Old Fellows, Daughters of Salome, Fishermen of Galilee, Knights of Pythias, Household of Ruth, the Franklin Street A. M. E. Church and Sunday School, the Foxhall Avenue A. M. E. Church and Sunday school and the Emanuel Baptist Church.

The flower committee, headed by Mrs. Robert A. Liscom, 164 O'Neil street, whose phone number is 296-J, is still ready to receive flowers to be put on soldiers' graves. Memorial Day. Flowers will be called for if Mrs. Liscom is notified.

Again Postpone Take Off for Rome

Old Orchard, Me., May 21 (AP).—Reports of bad weather conditions over part of the 4,700-mile transatlantic course they expected to follow, prevented the projected takeoff today for Rome of Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey in the monoplane "Green Flash".

The plane, in which Martin Jensen recently established a world's solo endurance flight record, remained in a hangar where it was stranded last night after Mr. James H. Kimball of the New York Weather Bureau reported that conditions would not be propitious for the flight for at least 24 hours.

Immediate Preparations for a Takeoff at Daybreak Today Were Made.

Mr. Yancey, who was at the airport at the time of the report, said that the plane was in the hangar and that the crew was ready to take off at daybreak tomorrow.

KINGSTON MOTORIST DISCHARGED AT WATERLIET

Eugene Vandenburg of Downs street, who was arrested at Waterliet on Sunday charged with being a traffic violator, says he did not post $10 with the police, as reported by Albany newspapers, and stated in Monday's Freeman, that he was discharged by the police magistrate before he was arraigned. The arraignment took place at the magistrate's home.

Hoover Appoints Commission For Law Enforcement

Four Men and One Woman to Study Entire Law Enforcement Problem—Popular Idea That Chief Function Concerns Probation—Wets and Drys Pleased With Personnel.

Washington, May 21 (AP).—Eleven prominent Americans, ten lawyers and a woman educator, chosen by President Hoover to be members of his national law enforcement commission, will gather around a conference table here this week to lay plans for investigating and attempting to find the remedy for lawlessness in the United States.

George W. Wickesham of New York city, attorney general in the Taft administration and president of the American Law Institute, will sit at the head of the table as chairman with another former cabinet officer, Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, was secretary in the Wilson administration, sitting at his right as ranking member of the commission.

The others will be three federal judges, William S. Kenyon, of Iowa; William I. Grubb, of Alabama; and Paul J. McCormick, of California; four eminent attorneys, Roscoe Pound, of the Harvard Law School; Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Virginia; Monte M. Lemaun, of New Orleans, president of the Louisiana Bar Association; and Frank J. Loesch, vice president of the Chicago crime commission; a former jurist, Kenneth R. Mackintosh, of Washington State, and one educator, Miss Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Faces Stupendous Undertaking.

The commission is expected to get at its work within a short time and conceivably has before it the most stupendous undertaking of any similar body in the history of the country. Guesses as to the length of time it will require for the completion of the job vary, but even the most optimistic agree that a final report is not to be expected within a year and a half or two years.

While the official White House announcement of the personnel designated the body as the national law enforcement commission, its chief function appears to be associated in the popular mind with prohibition enforcement. This trend of thought is clearly reflected in the comments on the selections made by leading members of Congress.

Both Drys and Wets Hopeful.

Generally speaking these comments were favorable, with some of the dries as well as the wets rather enthusiastic and decidedly hopeful of some concrete results so far as the whole prohibition question is concerned.

Spent Months in Consideration.

Before finally determining upon the eleven investigators, Mr. Hoover spent months sifting names and considering an avalanche of suggestions. He moved so carefully that only four of those to whom appointment was tendered refused to accept and the best guessers were able to hit on not more than five of those finally selected.

As disclosed some time ago, Mr. Hoover sought to have Harlan Fiske Stone, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, serve as chairman. He also offered places on the commission to Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state under Harding and Coolidge; Owen J. Roberts, far-famed as prosecutor of the naval oil reserve lease cases; and Benjamin N. Cordozo, chief judge of the New York state court of appeals.

Must Serve Without Pay.

Since Congress has provided no funds, the commissioners must serve without pay, at least at the start, and their expenses will have to be taken care of out of the White House contingent funds until Congress can appropriate the necessary money. This probably will be done at the present special session on the ground of an emergency situation requiring action.

CONTINUED HEAVY FOGS MAY DELAY FRENCH PLANE.

New York, N. Y., May 21 (AP).—Continued heavy fogs and rain off Newfoundland are expected to delay until Thursday or Friday the projected flight to Paris of the French plane, Bernard 151.

Armeno Lotfi, Jr., backer of the plane, said no takeoff would be attempted until weather conditions were favorable. Lotfi will accompany Jean Assolant, pilot, and Rene LeFevre, navigator, on the flight.

Air Line to Rome.

Oakland, Cal., May 21 (AP).—Captain Roscoe Turner, Hollywood stunt flyer, was here today avowedly planning to inaugurate an air line from Hollywood to Reno. He said the world use four planes and that the service would start early next month.

POWER PROPAGANDA.

Revelations in regard to the purchase of Southern newspapers by the power companies, following information as to such purchases in other parts of the country, have again brought public attention to a subject of great importance—the continuing acquisition by private interests of water power and other great natural resources which the disinterested believe should be preserved for the future benefit of the people. Governor Smith's fight against the advance of the power interests in New York will be recalled. Public discussion of any question is always proper as well as desirable, but more than questionable methods are being employed in this connection, such as the invasion of even the schools by the propaganda of the power companies.

Noting that such far-reaching propaganda is now matter of common knowledge, the Philadelphia Record warningly adds: "The subsidizing of colleges and newspapers by the power interests is bad enough, because it exerts an unperceived influence upon college students and newspaper readers who think they are getting untainted instruction or news. But the invasion of the public schools is far worse. The colleges and newspapers are private enterprises, and their owners and conductors are exposed to public scrutiny, dependent upon public favor. The schools are the public's own, not private; they are the people's property, the property of all the people; and instruction in them must not be poisoned by the propaganda of private enterprise. The power companies have no more right to circulate their propaganda in the schools than communists have. Let school boards be as vigilant to exclude this propaganda as they are eager to repeal communism."

REAPPORTIONMENT.

Congress, though extremely busy with tariff revision and farm relief, cannot afford to ignore another matter that is now being brought before it. The census and reapportionment bill which failed in the last session, or one serving the same purposes, should be passed without further delay. This is a job, which should have been taken care of immediately after the taking of the last national census in 1920. Congress so far has neglected it for political reasons, and thereby has not only deprived many states of their proper representation but has set a pernicious example in breaking the law and defying the Constitution. Another census must be taken next year. The legislation now contemplated does nothing about the lapse of the present decade, but seeks to insure suitable action for the decade approaching.

The measure presented by Senator Johnson of California is not exactly a reapportionment bill in itself, but provides that if the short session of Congress beginning in December, 1930, does not enact a reapportionment bill, the President shall reapportion Congress according to population returns from each state according to next year's census, keeping the membership of the House at 435 and allocating this membership according to the method used last time. Congress owes a duty to the country and itself to take such action.

ALIMONY "FOR LIFE."

It appears that a Chicago woman "now remarried to a man earning $30 a week, and still earning herself $25 a week, demands the continued payment of $25 a week as alimony from the first husband whom she had divorced." She holds that alimony is "for life," no matter whether or not she marries again. But the first husband, who also has married again, and the support of two women, one of whom is the wife of another man earning $50 a week, "an intolerable burden." So he went into court and Judge McCormick ruled in his favor, but, strange to say, his decision, though seemingly based on common sense, will have to be reviewed by the Illinois Supreme court.

This is said to be "a sample of many cases in which greedy the modern alimony hood." If so, it would seem to be high time for the higher courts to have down definite and constructive opinion under the law. For it is curious that if this particular Chicago gold-digger is sustained, she can make divorces, re-marrying and adding to the number of her alimony victims a prosperous life business—or at least until beauty-parlor repairs is no longer effective.

Denmark is certainly going partist. Its new parliament stands for a policy of total disarmament. It isn't that the nation objects particularly to fighting. History shows that the Danes have always held their own, or better, by land or sea. It is merely a matter of logic. Denmark is so small, the Danes argue, that any fighting forces she could muster would be helpless against any of her big neighbors, if they chose to invade her territory. With an established policy of non-resistance, they think, they will probably be safer. They will not provoke attack, and there will be no question of their neutrality. Non-resistance, whether by individuals or nations, has long been preached as a religious idea, but never practiced much. The experience of Belgium in the last war may be regarded as supporting the Danish view. Belgium resisted, and won a great reputation for valor, but was nearly ruined. If Denmark has the courage of her convictions in this matter, it will be interesting to see whether her small neighbors follow her example.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

ABOUT INFECTED TEETH.

About once or twice a year I feel the urge within me to get after the humorist who says "It is very easy to be a doctor. All you have to do when you don't know what is wrong with a patient is to say 'Oh it is your teeth that is the cause of all your trouble. You'll have to have them all extracted.'"

This is of course only a joke but it is not a joke if an individual has a mouthful of infected teeth, or even one infected tooth.

The care of the teeth, the removal of the infection from the teeth, gums, and tonsils, is just as important from a health standpoint as any other one part of the body.

When asked about the importance of the care of the mouth, Dr. William Osler, the greatest physician of modern times replied that "it was one of the outstanding public health matters, the promotion of which will do more to prevent disease and promote the health of the human race, than any other single thing in the whole field of modern sanitation."

Just think of that for a moment. No other one thing in the whole field of medicine or sanitation is as important as having a healthy mouth.

Someone recently pointed out that our life insurance companies pay more attention to such unimportant things as a small boil or pimple than they do to the condition of the mouth, and yet more trouble starts here than anywhere else.

Abscessed teeth, or even one abscessed tooth, may be the cause of all sorts of ailments throughout the body.

Heart disease, including infection of the lining of the heart itself, inflammation of the heart muscle or its covering, can come from infected teeth.

Most rheumatism, while due in part to infected tonsils, can likewise be blamed on infected teeth.

Eye and ear specialists have been telling us for years that a good percentage of their cases can be traced to bad teeth.

Even anemia is now definitely established as being frequently due to infected teeth.

So likewise with ulcers of the stomach and small intestine, kidney and liver ailments, appendicitis and other abdominal ailments.

You cannot wonder then that I wish our humorists would get away from treating this matter as a joke.

It means health and happiness, life itself, to every one of us.

MILTON.

Milton, May 20.—The Spring Institute of the Ulster County Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Milton Methodist Church on Tuesday, May 21. GOLD BULLETS

by Charles G. Booth

SYNOPSIS: During the summer of 1928, a man named Jerry, who was a member of the Two Brothers mine, was killed by a bullet. The bullet was found in the mine, and the man was found dead. The bullet was found in the mine, and the man was found dead. The bullet was found in the mine, and the man was found dead.

Chapter 13
SHOTS FROM A TOMB

WHAT of the man who had slashed my throat? Dillon, undoubtedly. Knowing that Jerry was in Torridity, he had come to plant the fannels. The children, I decided, didn't know he was here and he may not have seen them. He certainly knew I was here. Why in the name of common sense hadn't I brought a pistol?

I don't know what made me think of Furlie just then. MacNair had assumed that Furlie knew something about the Two Brothers mine; perhaps, indeed, had brought him the bit of quartz. Moreover, Hubbard's description of him strongly suggested the old desert-rat type. Mightn't Furlie be a relic of Torridity's vanished prosperity? Was it Furlie's presence I had sensed in the cave-like slash in the rock wall?

I had come within 50 feet of the slash when a rifle cracked and a bullet flattened against the rock in inches above my head!

The next spring up the opposite slope which ascended gradually and I saw not far above me a small wooden shack from which I concluded, had come the shot. I wondered if I were to be dropped dead as I stood.

The slash offered sanctuary. Only 50 feet away! Could I make it? I hurried myself towards it. Before I had covered a third of the distance the rifle cracked again and my hat leaped and fell over my face. Losing my balance, I reeled back against the cliff.

It seemed likely that a third shot would put an end to the foremost collector of pistols in San Felipe county and I stayed where I was. The sun was beginning to set beyond the crest of the Skeletons. It grew perceptibly darker. What were the man's intentions? Perhaps he merely intended to keep me out of the slash. Holding my breath, I edged away from the slash. Nothing happened. Apparently I might take myself off, but I mustn't go into the slash.

Why? It didn't take me long to speculate about it. If the slash ed in the town instead of Dillon? Was it, indeed, Furlie who had slashed my throat? And had Dillon, after "planting" the fannels, taken himself off? I began to wonder about the Two Brothers mine. MacNair had connected Furlie and the quartz specimens with it and I had concluded Lucy had found Jerry there. After swallowing a sandwich I set off up the street towards the flank of mountain behind the town. On the outskirts my feet found an indistinct trail of sorts and I let them carry me along it.

The sun was declining towards the Skeletons, but the wind blew hot as a dragon's breath and in its teeth whistled that sound I had heard as I drove towards Torridity. I thought it hissed at me, "Go back, you fool!" A thin sand haze hung in the air. A windstorm impended. I felt sure, and common sense urged me to go back; but just then I saw the buildings of an abandoned mining property. Heading into the bite of the wind, I quickly identified the property as the Two Brothers by the huge mass of splintered rock in front of the entrance to the main bore.

It took me half an hour to explore the property. In ruin and a-creek in the burning wind, the buildings were a sorry mess, but the machinery was in fair condition. From the "tailings" dump I followed the ore-cart rails up to the great pile of debris, which blocked the entrance. To remove it would be a sizable job.

In a barn-like structure was the police car Lucy had commandeered. It cheered me mightily. Leaving the car where it was, for the time being, I started back along the flank of the mountain.

The sun was lower. The wind had quickened; its eerie note shrilled a little. After I had gone 100 yards beyond the limits of the Two Brothers property I came upon a narrow gash slashed deep into the stony mountainside which I hadn't seen as I came up. A vague trail led into the gash and the imprint of shoes showed in a sprinkling of sand at my feet.

Striding into the gash, I found myself between towering walls of reddish rock which gradually widened into a sizable canyon that cut into the heart of the Skeletons. I had gone some 200 yards when I noticed a "V"-shaped joint in the south slope of the canyon. As I approached the joint I saw it was was not a new opening into the complicated workings of the Two Brothers mine, what was it? The marksman on the hillside was guarding a recently exposed ledge of gold-bearing ore.

"Who is it?" I muttered. "Furlie—Dillon?"

If MacNair was right in his assumption that Furlie knew something about the specimen we had found in Ogden's desk it might be Furlie.

My immediate concern was to get away. With my eyes upon the slope opposite I made my way along the trail, half expecting the smack of a bullet. But it didn't come and presently I was out in the desert again.

The sun had gone. Into the shrill cry of the wind had come a human note as awesome as a voice from a tomb. Little wheels and whirrs of sand sprang up, danced, died. The sand haze nipped my throat, stung my nostrils, watered my eyes. A curious sense of the desert holding itself in leash, of malign forces gathering beneath this outward tranquillity, affected me and I began to run.

When I had come within 100 yards of the nearest building the wind screamed like a herd of terrified horses. The ferocity of the wind was beyond conception. It took me into its arms and, spinning me like a top, ran with me screaming down the street. Abruptly it let me go and for a moment I hung in a little pocket in the wind. Geyers of sand sprang up from the earth, ropes of sand fell from the sky, and I saw them driven by the bellows of heaven into the reefs of a pit full of fends let loose.

And then, suddenly, a blast of sand poured into my face, blinding me; the wind picked me up again, spun me, and hurled me against the side of a building. Pining me, it smote me blow upon blow until I thought my senses would leave me. My body felt beaten to a pulp, and my face was stinging and bleeding from tiny cuts inflicted by the gravel-toothed wind.

Once again the wind picked me up and sent me spinning down the street. Then it smote me sideways. I pitched through an open door and went headlong.

Many people will look for the Club House light on May 23. That is the day set for this year's Minnewaska opening. The Wildmore House, May 29 to October 1; The Cliff House, June 27 to September 4. In this year's Minnewaska booklet two ladies of very different disposition play a part, steadfast Mother Nature and capricious Dame Fashion. The booklet marks the golden anniversary of Minnewaska, and the human ladies that appear therein are dressed in fashions of '79, of today, and in the varying styles of the time that intervenes. Other interesting descriptions are also described in this booklet, and the printed record tells how Alfred Smiley in 1867 climbed the Shawangunk heights and had a vision. A letter to his twin brother resulted in his portion the greater Shawangunks to the south, and founded Minnewaska. From a few acres Minnewaska has grown to an estate of eight square miles. Swimming, boating, the saddle putting, tennis, postoffice, libraries, reading rooms, auditorium, are some of the facilities in the evening, a concert, recital, motion pictures, or a stroll watching the golden sunset. Standing on the shore of the lake that is the heart of Minnewaska the founder resolved that the coming years should not diminish that priceless scenery. And so today amid the peace of nature, there is shelter for "a happy, carefree family of six hundred congenial folk whose tastes and desires find satisfaction in so unspoiled a natural wonderland."

General Synod of Reformed Church which Union to be One of the most important matters brought before the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America will be the election of officers, a president and vice president and two clerks. On Thursday evening the retiring president of the synod, the Rev. Malcolm J. MacLeod, D. D., of the Church of St. Nicholas, New York city, will preach the synodical sermon. The new chapel will be dedicated on Friday evening, June 1.

Question of Church Union

One of the important questions coming before this synod will be that of church union. A fact-finding commission was appointed by the last General Synod to gather information regarding union, especially with the Reformed Church in the United States. It is also expected that Dr. Robert E. Speer will be present and present an invitation from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., to the Reformed Church to come into union with them.

The program of Synod is not yet complete but it will be made public within the next ten days. The reports made to the Particular Synods of the denomination which have just finished their meetings show that the year has been one of mixed gains and losses.

Church Statistics

These figures are not official and may be somewhat changed when the corrected returns come in. However, there will not be any very radical changes from these figures. The figures as compared with the year before are as follows:

Events Around The Empire State

(By The Associated Press)

Glens Falls—As long as he allows a cow owned by Mrs. Jennie Butler to pasture on it, Clinton Hastings may have the entire farm and estate of his grandmother, Mrs. Melissa Lane, whose will was filed for probate recently. The farm is located at Bolton and Mrs. Butler is a daughter of Mrs. Lane. The latter provided in her will that the cow must have the use of the farm as long as Mrs. Butler chooses.

Lyons—A scrapbook started in 1814 has been mailed to Henry Ford by George T. Getman of this village. The book contains a woodcut, made in 1840, of a "horseless carriage"—a three-wheeled vehicle with a handle for steering the small front wheel, an upright boiler and a smokestack. Mr. Ford wrote to Getman that he would have the cut copied.

Geneseo—The so-called "dime novel" of a bygone generation is still popular according to "The Novel Hunter's Year Book," published here by Ralph F. Cummings of Farnumsville, Mass. The latest edition of the book states that a group of men show a lasting affection for the thrillers list several thousand such novels in their collections and requests for loans and exchanges are numerous.

Saint Bonaventure—St. Bonaventure's College opened one of the few college-owned golf courses in the country last week with a four-ball match. Ray McAuliffe, Erie Downs Golf Club professional, and Frank March of Erie Hill were paired against Joe Higgins, professional at the college, and Ernest Miller of Bradford, Pa.

Hunt—Work of salvaging an Erie railroad freight locomotive which plunged into a washout near here has been hampered by quicksand in which the engine has almost disappeared.

Manchester—Four members of the Barrows family of this village now are Eagle Scouts, Jack Barrows having been advanced to that rank recently.

Will Plant More Shad in Hudson

Albany, May 21—Before the close of the present shad season it is expected that several million shad fry will be planted in the Hudson river.

In furtherance of the efforts that have been made for several years past to improve shad fishing in the Hudson river, Conservation Commissioner Alexander MacDonald is buying all fertile eggs that are offered. These will be hatched at the department's Summitville field hatchery and the fry planted in the Hudson. For the past two years the department has been able to plant better than two million and a half fry a year and will endeavor to increase this number this year.

In 1924, the catch of shad in the Hudson river was only 55,666 pounds while in 1927 the catch was 225,388 pounds. In that year, the latest of which complete returns are available, shad furnished nearly one-third of the total poundage taken and their value was nearly half the value of the total catch reported. The total value of all kinds of fish taken by licensed net fishermen was $31,858 and the value of shad alone was $44,438.

A Tribute to Birge Harrison

Was an Intimate Friend of Robert Louis Stevenson, A World-Wide Traveler—Had Great Influence in Art.

(By F. Gardner Clough)

News of the recent death of Birge Harrison of Woodstock and Kingston came with the shock that always attends the death of the genuinely great and truly loved man; in his associations and accomplishments, Mr. Harrison was one of these unusual men whose passing causes profound pause and sorrow.

It is perhaps of timely interest to mention a few facts about the life of Mr. Harrison a bit aside from the previously printed biographical notes. He was one of the latest living associates and friends of Robert Louis Stevenson, whom he had visited in the South Sea Islands during the writer's sojourn there.

It was last year in an address before the Stevenson Society of America that Poulton Bigelow, also Ulster county resident, spoke of this fact. Mr. Bigelow spoke of Walter Palmer, Will Low, and Birge Harrison, three living (in 1925) artists, and thought it was "odd that all three should be Americans," and that these three Americans should constitute perhaps the last surviving links between this generation and that of the great Scotch author.

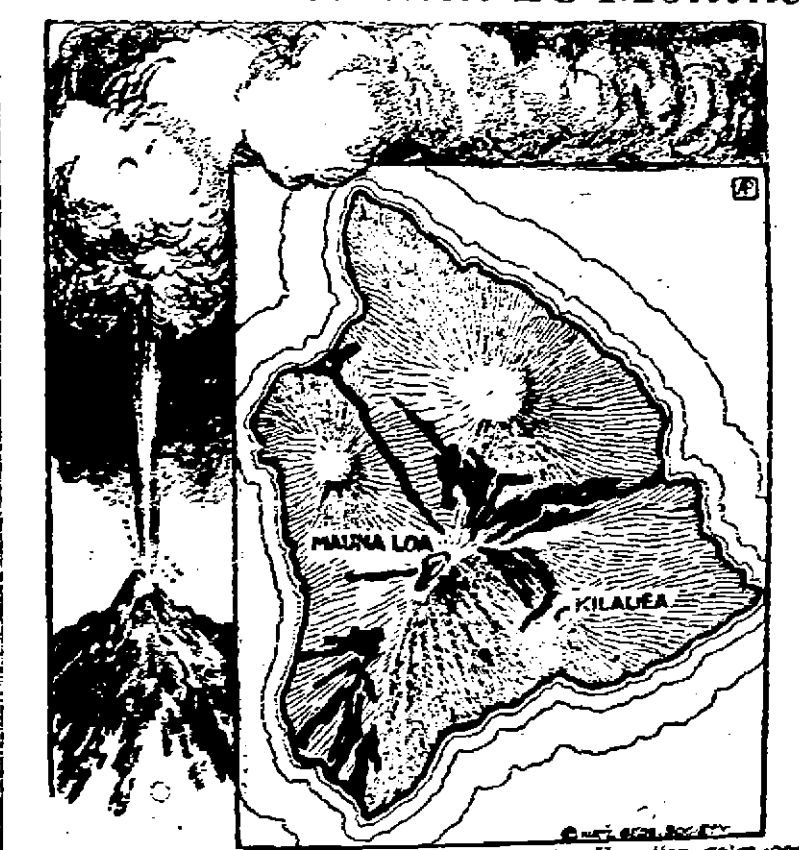

Mr. Harrison met Robert Louis during the time he was studying art in Paris; there sprang up a warm friendship between the two men which lasted until the untimely death of the famous and gifted Scotchman.

Harrison Fond of Stevenson

The writer has often heard the late Mr. Harrison tell of the trips he took with Robert Louis Stevenson, of whom he was very fond as a young man in his thirties. He followed him on one occasion, missing him at several places and only catching up with him at Samoa in the South Seas, where he was royally entertained by the poet. For like Stevenson (though more fortunate) the painter was a wide traveler and knew many ports and lands; both men spent some time in search of health. Mr. Stevenson found a partial recovery at Saranac Lake, but made the ill-fated change to the South Seas. Mr. Harrison found a full recovery from his ailments about that time in Arizona, where he lived with the Indians, studying and painting.

We can easily see how a lover of nature such as Birge Harrison would enjoy Stevenson. In turn, the consummate artist in Stevenson opened his heart to the young painter who Tommy was always eager for knowledge, and one day, while walking in the park with his father, he asked the name of a tree.

Paser

"That's an elm tree," his father told him.

"Why do they call it an elm?" "Oh, why do they call you Tommy?" asked his father, impatiently.

Tommy thought for a while. Then he said: "I don't know—why do they call me Tommy, father?"

May Festival at First Reformed

All is in readiness for the colorful May festival at the First Reformed Church on Thursday and Friday evenings, May 23 and 24. The chapel is being converted into a veritable fairland with fancy, candy, ice cream and flower booths. The mystery booth is just over the garden wall discreetly hidden by tall hollyhocks. The presiding young people will be lavishly arrayed in quaint costumes, adding to the festive appearance. The stage—a tower of flowers—will introduce some of Kingston's finest talent and the program for each evening is as follows:

Thursday evening: Readings by Miss Ethel Mauterstock; harp solo by Leonard Stine, accompanied by Miss Harriet Spink; string trio, consisting of Miss Eva Clinton, Warren Ingalsbe and Kenneth Newell, accompanied by Mr. Stine.

Friday evening: Recitation, "The Violin's Protest," by Miss Rosamond Lammiman, with violin incidentals by Kenneth Newell; a Scotch reading by Miss Lillian Nelson, preceded by violin solo, "Annie Laurie," played by Warren Ingalsbe; a sketch, "Harmony Singers," by Eva Clinton and Kenneth Newell, and a violin solo by Kenneth Newell, accompanied by Miss Eva Clinton.

Donald Zucca's orchestra will entertain the audience with popular music during the balance of the evening. Tickets may be secured from members of the society or at the door. The doors will be open at 7:30 p. m. and the entertainment will begin at 8:30 p. m.

The modern gas range not only beautifies your kitchen but gives you leisure time for other duties while your meals cook. Equipped with oven heat regulators they keep the temperature at the degree you wish. And the heat is so steady that a whole meal cooks without attention from the time it is put in the oven until it is taken out.

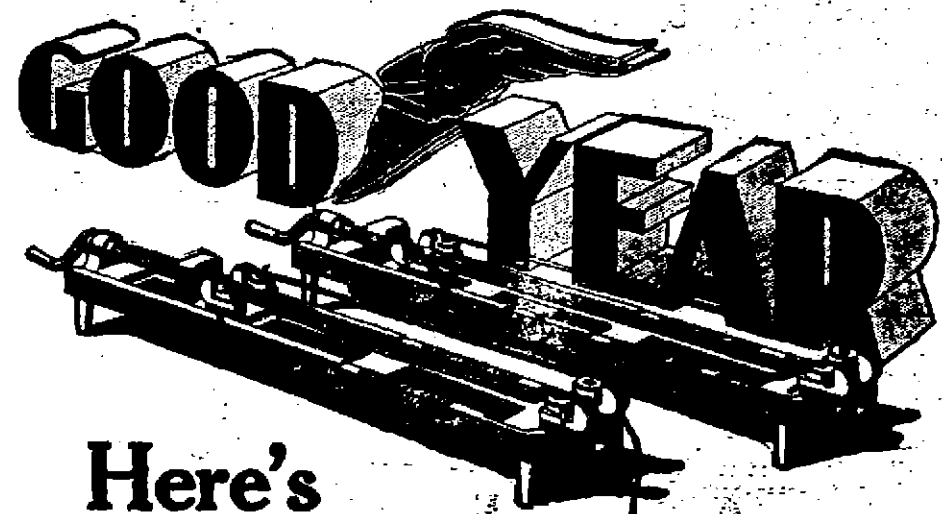

Cake baking, meat roasting, broiling—all are perfectly done in the Clark-Jewel ranges. And don't forget that all your canning may be done in the oven of these ranges. Set the wheel at the proper temperature, put your cans full of fruit in the oven—and they'll take care of themselves.

If you are not sure of the possibilities of these oven heat control gas ranges, call our office for a demonstration. This is no exaggeration—the heat watches itself.

Here's
the Proof of Quality

Let us show you this simple test.

Two cords of exactly the same length—one Good-year-developed and Good-year-patented SUPERTWIST, the other the usual standard cord—are placed on these machines. Exactly the same amount of strain is given both—then released. What happens?

SUPERTWIST snaps back to its original tautness like a rubber band. The other cord sags—remains inert. It has lost its spring. You see the comparative tension illustrated in the foreground.

We start again in the same way—fresh SUPERTWIST cord, fresh cord of the usual standard—both the same length. The strain is applied—increased. SNAP! the cord breaks, while SUPERTWIST remains intact. That's what happened on the machine in the background.

There's the proof of SUPERTWIST'S superiority before your eyes. Goodyear Tires, made of SUPERTWIST, stretch and recover under road shocks. Tires made of ordinary cord lack this resiliency and react as you have just seen.

The elasticity—the durability of SUPERTWIST has eliminated blowouts and similar troubles.

That's why we sell Goodyear's—because we know they will stand the gaff of hard service.

Come in soon. It will be a pleasure to perform this interesting test for you.

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT SHRIKE BIRDS

"THE birds," said the Sandman, "are frightened of Mr. Northern Shrike who has black wings and a black tail with touches of white. He has a black spot behind the eye and his body is of a grayish black color."

"He is about the size of a robin, and I must tell you later about the one I saw the other day. I've been seeing a good many birds this season. Of course the Northern Shrikes come down to us in the winter time."

"There is a kind of a sociability about the birds that somehow is always especially to be noticed. At least, I have noticed it. The other day, for example, I saw a lot of friendly cowbirds having a regular afternoon chat in a field."

"I don't know when I've seen so many of them together."

"And I saw a group of lovely bluebirds high up in the air having a so-

table time with each other, talking in their soft, beautiful voices.

"Mr. Northern Shrike has cousins named Loggerhead Shrikes. The Loggerheads wear white waistcoats and their black touches are blacker than those of the Northern Shrikes—for though I said the Northern Shrikes have black touches often it's a gray black and the Loggerheads don't care for gray."

"The Loggerheads are a little smaller than the Northern Shrikes. They whistle in their harsh way and they build their nests in thickets of twigs and leaves."

"They lay about five or six or even seven eggs so that many little Loggerheads come along to do the cruel things their family has always delighted in doing."

"Shrikes, it is true, eat grasshoppers and small mice, but they eat little birds, too. And they kill more than they can eat and leave their food hanging upon thorns or twigs, so that often they are called butcher birds because their homes look like butcher shops."

"The Northern Shrikes have breasts which are barred. They have feet which are like the feet of other small birds and it is almost impossible for them to hold their prey in their grasp. So they hang it on thorns and tear the bits they want to eat from these hooks of theirs by pulling with their beaks."

"But they leave a great deal on the thorns which they do not want to eat, and that is the worst part of them. For they have eyes which are bigger than their stomachs, as the saying is. They think they want more to eat than they really can eat."

"And, too, it shows such a horrid nature to want to kill little birds, even when they're sure they have enough to eat in the home as it is!"

"But Mr. Northern Shrike was fooled the other day. He was looking out of his cruel eyes and seeing what there was about for him when suddenly he noticed there seemed to be no birds about at all."

"What had happened? He couldn't understand."

"And what do you suppose had happened?"

"I can't guess," said Nancy. "Neither can I," said Nick.

"Tell us, please," urged Nancy.

"A brave I. The robin had warned the other birds that the shrike was nearby."

"Yes, he had been brave and had risked his life going to warn the other birds."

"And he had escaped, too!"

"Oh, how mad Mr. Northern Shrike was! 'I wanted to have a good hunt today,' he said to himself. 'This weather is so bracing and makes me feel like marketing in my usual wild fashion.'"

"But Mr. Northern Shrike was not to do his marketing in the way he had planned."

"He was not going to find birds in the market, for the birds had all been warned away and he grumbled to himself:

"'Birds aren't in the market today. Wretched, wretched, wretched!'"

"But the birds, as you may imagine, didn't think it was wretched at all."

"They were thankful they were safely away from Northern Shrike."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"GUIDE ME, O THOU GREAT JEHOVAH"

WHEN we sing the words of this powerful hymn we have a consciousness of life's trials, of battles and of strife. And it was in a heart torn with trials and a mind freed against opposition, that the lyric which has been sung wherever English is spoken had its inspiration.

The author, William Williams, was born in Wales in 1717. Though first a doctor, he studied for the ministry of the Church of England. Independent and liberty loving, however, his disposition was against the rulings of the "Successors" who were at that time the bone of contention within the church. The English bishops were stern in repression of such sentiments, and Williams became a Methodist or Wesleyan, preaching in this denomination for 40 years. He is said to have done for liberalism in Wales what Wesley did for England and Luther for Germany.

It was during the time of his difficulties with his bishops, while he was pitting himself against the "powers that be," nature frowned and thundered in accord with his inner turmoil, that Williams penned with his goosequill the words which have brought his name down through the centuries as none of his sermons, powerful as they were, would have done:

Guide me, O thou Great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land; I am weak, but Thou art mighty, Hold me with Thy powerful hand.

BY-PRODUCTS

THE annual report of a well-known motor company for 1928 states that the total sales of its by-products were nearly seventeen million dollars, an increase of about a million and a half dollars over the previous year. Everything that is cast aside in the process of production in the plants is utilized. From the waste wood, charcoal is made, also a few chemicals. Of the fourteen elements made from the by-products, ammonium sulphate was sold in large quantities to farmers for fertilizing purposes. Benzol was sold as a motor fuel and brought in nearly a million and a half dollars. Large quantities of slag was used for surfacing roads. Thus all of the fourteen by-products were used for constructive purposes. Nothing is ever thrown away as waste.

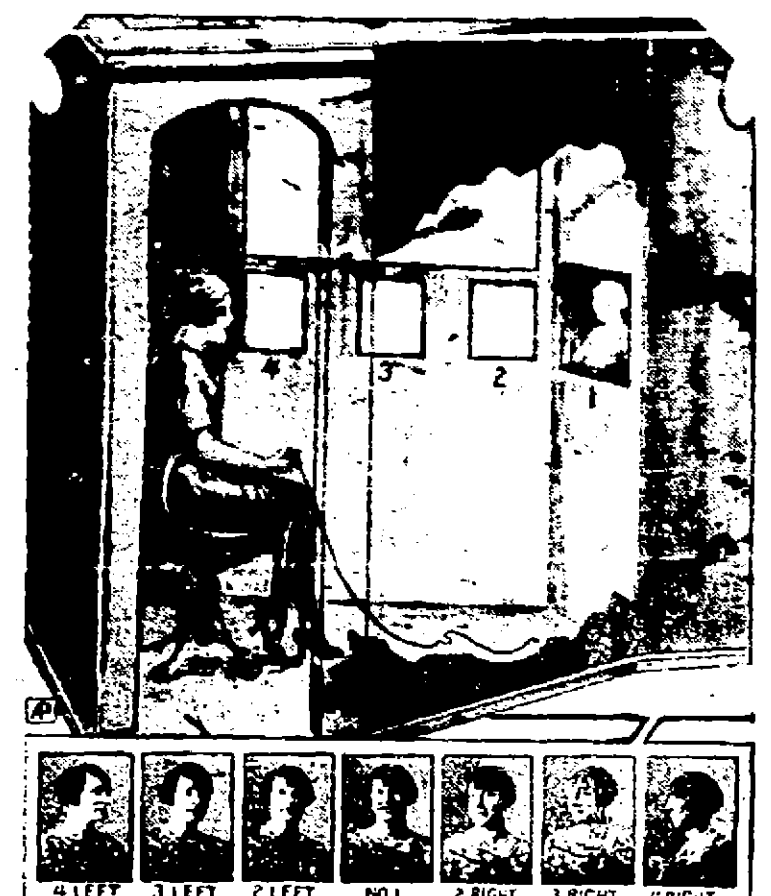

The economic problem of waste is of vital concern, not only to large manufacturing establishments but also to large cities. In a recent issue of a leading magazine attention was called to the financial value of the 1,800 tons of rubbish and garbage which the city of New York annually dumps into the sea. The article stated, "A few years ago an engineer of the bureau of municipal research estimated that the city was paying three million dollars annually for dumping nearly five million dollars of values into the sea; also that the total loss caused by smoke in New York was estimated by the department of public health at ninety-six million dollars and that leaky plumbing alone caused a daily loss of twenty thousand dollars."

Perhaps an even more serious problem is suggested not by the waste of material by-products but by the waste of human energy. Misdirected energy is waste and its evaluation in terms of dollars would be exceedingly high could it be properly estimated. Misdirected energy is always a negative process. It not only fails to create values but positively destroys, for it lowers ambition, vitality and the realizing sense of a definite life purpose. Endeavoring with all our might to do the thing we can best do, and not wasting time and energy in trying to accomplish what we were never born to do, argues for the conservation of energy and the avoidance of decay of the social and economic failures in life.

New Camps and Forest Trails

Being Laid Out in the Forest Preserve for Tourists—Two New Lake Shore Camps—Red Cross to Give Life Saving Instructions.

Albany, May 21.—Two large new lake shore camp sites will be added to the recreational attractions of the Adirondack forest preserve this summer and there will be enlargements and improvements of several others both in the Adirondacks and Catskills. In addition 500 miles of existing trails will be cleared and new trails will be built in both regions.

The Conservation Department's system of public camp sites in the forest preserve has made of the state's two million acres of wilderness the greatest public playground in America with accommodations for tourists, campers and hikers that are practically unlimited and that are open to the free use of the public for purposes of health and recreation.

The Catskill trail projects include an entirely new trail from Platt Clove over Indian Head, Twin and Sugarloaf mountains to connect with the existing Mink Hollow trail. This will make accessible to the public a large tract of state land on the above named mountains.

BRITISH TO TRY FOR AIR RECORDS

Expect to Cop With New Mystery Plane.

London.—Two world's air records—the nonstop in a straight line and the endurance—are to be attacked by Britain's new mystery plane.

Built specially for these attempts, the plane, a giant Fairey Napier long-range monoplane, was recently completed at Cranwell airbase, Lincolnshire.

Definite details of the intended flights have not yet been revealed, but it is suggested that the plane may try to fly around England for three days and nights to beat the endurance record. It may then, perhaps, fly to South Africa by stages, but return to England nonstop, a distance of, roughly, 6,000 miles, which would beat the nonstop flight in a straight-line record.

While the plane was being built all data as to its construction was shrouded in a veil of secrecy, but since its completion, the veil has been lifted slightly to reveal a large number of innovations and novelties, specifically included for the attempts on the records.

For instance, there is a hooter, which will sound in the pilot's ear should he get off his course when attempting the endurance record. It operates automatically, but how it does so is still a secret.

From wing tip to wing tip the machine measures nearly 100 feet. The fuel is carried in this giant wing. For the duration attempt there will be more than 1,000 gallons of gasoline stowed away. The total weight of the machine and fuel is ten tons, and to carry it the wheels and tires have had to be strengthened. The tires are pumped up by an electric pump and the wheels are fitted on to ball bearings in order to facilitate the takeoff.

To insure no failure of the gasoline supply, a wind-driven pump can be pushed through the side of the fuselage if the engine pump fails. If that fails, a hand pump can be used. The filtering arrangements for the oil are duplicated. This is in order that one filter can be cleaned when the other is in use. Arrangements have been made, also, for oil to be jetted away while the monoplane is still in the air.

The pilot's seat is fitted with pneumatic upholstery, and there is a pneumatic bed. There are also facilities for hot and cold drinks and food.

The engine is an ordinary type Napier Lyon, developing 450 horse power, but secret alterations have been made with the carburetor system greatly to reduce the gasoline consumption. In a bench test the engine ran perfectly for more than 70 hours.

Testify Warder Accepted Gifts

New York, May 21 (AP).—Testimony that Frank H. Warder, former state banking superintendent, had accepted expensive gifts from the late F. M. Ferrari, head of the defunct City Trust Company, was part of the record today in the state investigation of the banking department.

Warder was excused from testifying before the Moreland Act inquiry yesterday when he refused to waive immunity. He remained, however, to hear the following testimony offered:

"That Ferrari had guaranteed the rent of the Warder Riverside Drive apartment and had paid the rent for one month; that Ferrari had bought expensive oriental rugs and imported furniture for it, and that the late City Trust head had given an automobile to Warder's daughter."

State banking examiners also testified that Warder had ordered the semi-annual examination of the Ferrari bank held up contrary to law and that an examiner's report citing twenty-two violations of the banking laws by the City Trust Company resulted only in Warder calling for a "friendly conference" with Ferrari.

When examination of the bank finally was made, millions in forged paper and unsecured notes were found.

Despite this discovery, Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman of the Bank of America, testified Warder on the day after Ferrari's death urged him to take over the bank, telling him it was in good condition except for "the usual irregularities." A week later the bank failed.

Warder upon leaving the hearing yesterday was served with a subpoena calling for his appearance before a federal investigation into the bankruptcy of the Lancia Motors of America, Inc. At a previous appearance before this investigation Warder testified he never received any gifts from Ferrari.

Bandits Kill Two And Get $85,800

San Diego, Cal., May 21 (AP).—A widespread search was on today for two men who shot to death two Mexican special police officers and escaped with $85,800, the week-end receipts of a Resort Company at Santa Catalina, Mexico, while the money was being brought to a bank here.

The robbery, which police said was masterfully planned, took place yesterday on the crowded national highway, just south of San Diego. The special officers, Jose Perez Borrogo and Nemesis Morro, were transporting the money to San Diego in an automobile.

The robbers, who evidently had been following the money car for some distance, suddenly swung out from the roadside and pulled alongside. The bandits then unlimbered a machine gun and Borrogo and Morro were killed. The officers managed to escape several shots at the roadside before they died. Borrogo was killed with nine bullets in his body and Morro was shot five times.

One of the robbers, who grabbed the money bag from the officers' hands, sped away. Several motorists pursued them but the holdup man abandoned their car for another machine and disappeared.

Wm. G. Bowman and James N. Cullen, widely known sportsmen and directors of the Agua Caliente Company, whose money was taken, announced a reward of $5,000 would be paid for the capture of the robbers, dead or alive.

The following officers were elected for the coming year and will be installed at the next meeting: President, Mrs. I. Graham; vice president, Mrs. R. Sahler; secretary, Mrs. D. Oakley; and treasurer, Mrs. C. Pine. The members then went on the school grounds to look at the shrubs. Prof. Bushy had helped plant. All but one of the fifty-seven set out are growing nicely. Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, May 21. (State Department of Agriculture and Markets).—Lighter receipts and a fairly good demand resulted in a further price advance on Virginia cabbage on the local wholesale section today. One and one-half bushel bampers of Wakefield jobbed out at 15c@18c.

During the previous week New York city received 210 carloads of cabbage, of which 190 cars originated in Virginia.

Hudson Valley new crop mushrooms are gradually increasing in volume and improving in quality. The demand was more active and three-pound baskets of fancy whites commanded $2. Pennsylvania white mushrooms ranged widely in condition and quality and sales were reported from 59c@1.50.

The demand for Baldwin apples was rather slow and in consequence prices tended lower. Barreled United States grade No. 1, 2 1/2 inch fruit peddled out at $5@6.50. Unclassified offerings of the same size brought $3@5.50.

California sweet cherry prices slumped from 25c@30c an eight-pound box since the close of last week. The Chapman variety sold at auction at $2.30@4.12 1/2 per eight-pound box. Tartarians realized $2.70@3.8. Other kinds brought $2.45@4.50.

Receipts of strawberries from Maryland and Virginia were considerably lighter and values strengthened. Trading was moderate. Quart baskets wholesaled at 14c@22c, principally 15c@20c.

Last week's strawberry receipts filled 134 cars, as against 491 cars for the corresponding week last season.

Arrivals of Florida tomatoes were moderate. Price changes were few and small in a steady market. The demand was moderate and confined to good quality consignments. Six-basket carriers of 144 tomatoes of the fancy pack sold as high as $4.25 and as low as $1.25. The choice pack of 150 tomatoes reached as high as $3 and as low as $1.

FAHEY GIVES BAIL ON RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

James D. Fahey, the construction foreman on the installation of the new cement company plant in the town of Rosendale, who was arrested after his auto skidded and collided with a car driven by Howard Stevens of High Falls on Cornell Hill Sunday night, when John Kelly, a passenger in the Stevens auto, was badly hurt, was taken before Justice of the Peace McArdle at Rosendale by Under Sheriff Doyle Monday afternoon and arraigned on a charge of reckless driving. He gave bail in $500 and was released. Kelly, who has been a cripple for years, was taken to the Benedictine Hospital where it was thought he had been seriously injured.

Youths Are Held For Grand Jury

Kenneth Welch and Howard Smith were held for Grand Jury action on a charge of abducting two young girls.

After a lengthy hearing in police court today Judge Shufeldt held Kenneth Welch of Cottage Row and Howard Smith of South Wall street to await the action of the next grand jury on a charge of abducting two young girls of this city, one 15 and the other 17 years old.

At the hearing Attorney Chris J. Flanagan appeared for the youths and Attorney N. LeVan Haver for the district attorney's office. The two youths and the girls were caught at Allentown, Pa., by the police there and held for the local police. They were brought back to Kingston by Sergeant Phinney and Officer Soper.

Albert J. Gibson, 128 Downs street, arrested several days ago by Officer Roedel, who charged Gibson with parking his car in the restricted area on Fair street, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Shufeldt.

WINSTON AND COMPANY LOW BIDDERS FOR ALBANY WORK

A low bid of $194,795 was submitted to the Albany board of water supply Monday by Winston and Company of Kingston, on the contract for clearing the sites of the Alceve and Basic Creek reservoirs. This is the sixth contract in the construction of the city's new water supply system.

There were seven bids for the clearing work, all of which were referred to the board's engineers, Whitman, Reguardt and Smith, for tabulation. It is expected the contract will be awarded within a few days.

Winston and Company, the low bidders, are the contractors engaged in the construction of the Alceve dam, the second unit of the water supply system, to be placed under contract last year. The amount of that contract is $747,449.25.

The contract will call for clearing 1,584 acres of land and the demolition of 224 buildings and structures on the site of the Alceve Reservoir and the clearing of 222 acres and removal of twenty-one buildings on the site of the Basic Creek reservoir. The entire village of Indian Fields, which is on the Alceve reservoir site, is to be demolished. Much of the land to be cleared on both reservoir sites, is now covered with timber.

The contract, which must be completed by March 1, 1930, also will include sanitation and disinfection measures in connection with the buildings demolished.

DUMBBELL CLUB IS FORMED BY FLYERS

Police Board Will Get Facts

Will Ascertain What Other Cities Are Doing in Regard to Law Requiring Policemen to Wear One Day Off in Seven.

The board of police commissioners at the meeting held Monday evening took no definite action on how to work out the problem of enforcing the new law that goes into effect the first of July which gives every member of the police force one day off in every seven.

Mayor E. J. Dempsey, president of the board, will take the matter up with Secretary (Capt.) of the Mayors' Conference to learn how other cities expect to handle the problem, and then a special meeting will be held by the local board to arrange a new working schedule for the police to go into effect the first of July.

The board also transacted considerable routine business before adjourning.

Colleagues Seek Jobs in Paraguayan Army

Asuncion, Paraguay.—Letters from United States college students volunteering to fight for Paraguay against Bolivia were received by President Guggiaro long after the Chaco quarrel had quieted down.

One from the University of Texas, Austin, said that Ernest Joseph desired to "come to the aid" of Paraguay with 200 companions, all with military training.

A letter from Comanche, Texas, offered the help of James Madison, who said he was an aviator and wished to volunteer with two companions, sergeants and machine gunners. Similar letters were received by Bolivian authorities from Americans eager to see a fight in the swampy, mosquito-infested Chaco.

Act to Remove U. S. War Dead from Russ Soil

Kansas City, Kan.—Bodies of American war dead buried in northern Russia and Siberia are to be removed to the United States as soon as the graves are located. It was announced by Eugene P. Carver, Jr., commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mr. Carver said the Russian people's commissariat for foreign affairs has agreed to co-operate with the veterans' organization in locating the graves and removing the bodies, which are those of soldiers who fell on the Eastern front in the World war.

About the Lion

"I want to go on record for this one," said plump Penelope, "because I saw it myself. It was in the subway the other morning. You wouldn't think a person hurrying to his office bright and early would be absent-minded, would you? Earl of Rosebery, Ex-Premier, Dies

Famous Briton Known Equally as Statesman, Author and Turfman, Was 82 Years Old—Death Came as General Surprise.

Edinburgh, Scotland, May 21 (AP).—The Earl of Rosebery, former Liberal prime minister and one of the last of England's great Victorian lords, died early today at his home, The Durdans, near here, after a brief illness. His death was the gradual sinking into sleep of an aged man, worn out by years and infirmity.

All his near relatives, save a 15-year-old granddaughter, Ruth Primrose, child of the son who was killed fighting in Palestine, were at the bedside of the 82-year-old man, who was known equally in England as statesman, author and turfman.

His death caused general sorrow hereabouts, where the former premier's steadfast clinging to the habits of the "lighties" and his benign and sportsmanlike outlook on life had made him one of the best beloved of residents. Most of his servants were in tears.

The Earl, who was the fifth of his name, had celebrated his eighty-second birthday only a fortnight ago by driving from his home to Epsom town in a barouche and pair, accompanied by a postillion in true Victorian style. Last Friday he caught a slight cold which grew rapidly worse. It took its final serious turn yesterday morning.

Illusions of Romantic East Lost After Trip

Philadelphia.—Three adventuresome young men who recently completed a rapid 14,000-mile tour into the heart of Transjordan, Arabia, and Syria returned with shattered opinions about romantic illusions of the desert.

The travelers—Robert P. Brown of Moorestown, N. J.; Richard A. Tausig and Chester P. McCreery, both of Germantown, Pa.—were entertained by three kings of the Near East.

Dusky beauties of the desert are non-existent, the youthful travelers said. The women, they said, are mere drudges. The hamlet tribesmen, instead of sallying forth in gay garments, mounted on beautiful steeds and armed with antiquated guns, now use motor cars and machine guns in their forays, they said.

Wig of Gold

Recent excavations in Ur of the Chaldees have resulted in many finds richer than any which have been hitherto uncovered. Many beautiful specimens in gold have been taken from tombs which were built centuries before the Christian era. It has long been known that the kings of that time in that part of the country shaved their heads and wore wigs and false beards, and among the treasures referred to is a wig of gold. It is a beautiful piece of metal work made to fit the head and the exterior engraved with minute care. The hair is beautifully tooled, as is also the bandeau about the forehead. Ends of gold show between the locks worked in repousse and pierced with a hole.

Negligence Action In Supreme Court

EDWARD T. PRATT SUES CLEMENCE RANDOLPH FOR DAMAGES TO HIS AUTO AND ALSO FOR PERSONAL INJURIES. Another negligence action growing out of an automobile accident was taken up in Supreme Court Monday afternoon. The action is brought by Edward T. Pratt, carpenter, of this city against Clemence Randolph of Woodstock to recover for damage to his car and also for personal injuries which he alleges he sustained on June 17, 1926, when his car was struck by a car owned by defendant and driven by Mr. Wolven, an employee. Pratt in company with a friend was driving west over the northern Ashokan boulevard toward West Hurley. At Leaycraft's turn he turned his Maywell car to the left to enter into the West Hurley drive road. He claims the Randolph car was proceeding down the dyke road toward the Leaycraft turn and as he turned his car into the dyke road the Randolph car struck his car and drove it off the road and back toward the main boulevard some distance. Plaintiff sustained a fracture of his ribs and other injuries and his car was wrecked. He alleges that the Randolph car was proceeding at a fast clip as it approached the turn and that when he made the turn he sounded his horn and advanced when he saw the Randolph car about 200 feet away. The car skidded when the brakes were applied and he claims after the impact the Randolph car skidded some distance along the road with his car and that the two cars were locked together. Claiming freedom of contributory negligence he seeks damages for his injuries and $150 for his car. Defendant denies the claim and contends that the Pratt car was driven into the approaching car of Miss Randolph and directly into its path without warning and that Mr. Pratt was responsible for the accident. Case sent to jury.

Gascos Defeat Major League Co.-Tailet Nine In Close Game

Tommy Lewis's generosity of passes and three costly errors enabled the Gascos to sweep out the Columbia Tailet. The Monday evening at the second game played at the Athletic field this season. The victory put the Gascos in a tie for first place in the Industrial League and pulled Co-Tailet down to fourth place. A single stolen base and two errors gave the Gascos the game in the last inning.

It was a cold night for a ball game and it seemed to have an effect on Lewis, who could not get his fast ball across the plate. Despite his wildness he probably would have won but for the three errors made by his teammates.

Jimmy Doyle, pitching for the Gascos, was also a victim of poor support, his teammates erring four times. Jimmy issued but one free pass, but he was hit more often than Lewis. Each pitcher had the batting, winning the breeze, Lewis striking out nine and Doyle seven.

Columbia-Tailet was the first team to score, registering twice in the second inning. Wojcio led first by virtue of a walk, Keegan singled to left field and Lynch dropped down, allowing Wojcio to score. Ballard's single sent Keegan across the rubber.

The Gascos had opportunities to score in the second and third innings, Lewis putting men on the bases in both innings with free passes, but in the second inning he fanned two batters and in the third a fast double play saved him. He was not so fortunate in the fourth.

Lynch and Knight were given walks and Smith beat out a hunt to fill the bases. Lewis continued issuing free passes and forced in two runs and then made a wild pitch to give the Gascos a 3-2 lead.

With two out in the sixth inning Co-Tailet scored four runs to again take the lead. Hits by Lewis, Wojcio, Keegan and Ballard and three errors accounted for the runs. Lewis got an infield hit to start the rally.

They didn't hold the lead long for the Gascos tied the score in their half of the sixth. Wood's double, Hoffman's single, two walks and an error netted the Gascos three runs.

After the Co-Tailets went out in order in their half of the last inning the Gascos proceeded to push across the winning run. Sickler singled and Quinn was sent in to run for him. He stole second and went to third on Tomaseski's high throw over the second baseman. On the return of the ball to the infield Wojcio let it go through him and Quinn romped home with the final tally.

SIDELINERS.

Lynch made a couple circus catches in right field and he also missed one the same way.

Hoffman's stop of Wojcio's ground-er in the fifth inning brought a lot of applause. After knocking it down he made a quick throw to the first baseman to get his man.

Bob Sickler went hitless until the last time up. Then he got the hit which eventually won the ball game.

Lewis now leads in two departments. He handed out the most free passes and has the largest number of strikeouts.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HERBERT W. BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

It has been a long time since National League fans have had an opportunity of watching the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers battle it out for last place at this more or less late date in the season while the Boston Braves and Philadelphia take up the burden of making some kind of a showing against the undeniably stronger western clubs. But that is just what they are watching now as they decline to let themselves believe what their eyes tell them.

In recent years when the center of National League strength has rested west of the Alleghenies, the Giants and to a lesser degree, the Robins, have been able to muster the strongest defenses for repelling western thrusts. This year these two clubs have made a sorry showing while the surprising Phillies and the still more surprising Braves have at least put up some sort of a battle to remain within striking distance of the three leading western clubs—Chicago, St. Louis and Pittsburgh. This condition may, and probably will change but it has been an interesting phenomenon in a season full of strange occurrences.

There may be some hope for the east in the present outcast competition in the west where Cubs, Pirates, Cardinals and Reds are indulging in a dog fight that is getting none of them anywhere.

The Cubs maintained their hold on the lead by downing the Pirates, 6 to 1, behind Guy Bush's five-hit pitching yesterday. The Cubs made their eighth hit off Steve Swetonic count.

At Cincinnati, Jess Haines recorded his 14th straight league victory in two seasons when he pitched the Cardinals to an easy 5 to 1 triumph over the Reds. Haines finished the 1928 season with nine consecutive triumphs and has added five straight this year.

At Brooklyn, the Robins trounced the Giants, 6 to 1. William Watson Clark, young left-hander, giving the men of McGraw only two hits. Only in the fifth did Clark falter. In that frame two singles and a sacrifice gave the Giants their only run. The Dodgers pounded Karl Hubbell out of the box in the third but were stopped by Ralph Judd, a rookie.

Cold weather forced postponement.

MORGAN STAVES OFF SORIA'S SAVAGE ATTACK

Los Angeles, May 21 (AP)—Titular supremacy over the junior lightweights remained today with Tod Morgan after he had staved off the savage attack of Baby Sal Soria, Mexican challenger of San Bernardino, Cal.

The challenger's flying fists, which have hammered 55 of his 75 opponents to the canvas for knockout victories, whanged away industriously at Morgan here last night but Soria was unable to bore through the champion's defense appreciably. Morgan took eight of the ten rounds for a decision.

Baby Sal's challenge was ripped to shreds by the jabbing, slashing left hand of the champion. Morgan's long left found its way to Soria's head and body repeatedly, keeping the Mexican's head tilted back and his weight balancing on his heels. Soria was unable to unleash his short, jolting rights as often as he desired.

In two rounds, however, Baby Sal's hope was almost realized. He took the third and eighth sessions, and had the champion in distress in both. In the third he nailed Morgan with several lefts and jarring rights and Tod went down. The champion claimed a foul but was ordered to

Just another good thing added to the other good things of life

Augusta, Ga., May 21 (AP)—Ty Cobb, the Georgia peach, has turned to golf—and is batting 1.000. Old Man Par, however, is still his master. Par has retained his batting eye and never "misses" the ball. During more than a score of years as a star in the major leagues, Cobb declined to turn to the royal and ancient pastime because he believed it interfered with his batting stance. Since his retirement, however, he has played regularly here.

MORGAN STAVES OFF SORIA'S SAVAGE ATTACK

Los Angeles, May 21 (AP)—Titular supremacy over the junior lightweights remained today with Tod Morgan after he had staved off the savage attack of Baby Sal Soria, Mexican challenger of San Bernardino, Cal.

The challenger's flying fists, which have hammered 55 of his 75 opponents to the canvas for knockout victories, whanged away industriously at Morgan here last night but Soria was unable to bore through the champion's defense appreciably. Morgan took eight of the ten rounds for a decision.

Baby Sal's challenge was ripped to shreds by the jabbing, slashing left hand of the champion. Morgan's long left found its way to Soria's head and body repeatedly, keeping the Mexican's head tilted back and his weight balancing on his heels. Soria was unable to unleash his short, jolting rights as often as he desired.
